U.K. beefs up Belfast forces

BELFAST, May 6 (Agencies) -Britain announced today the despatch of troop reinforcements to Northern Ireland as the province hraced for fresh violence following the death of IRA hunger striker Bohby Sands.

A defence ministry unn-ouncement in London said 600 men from the army's "Spearhead" battalion, the Royal Regiment of Wales, were expected to arrive in morning--when the province's Roman Catholics are expected to take part in Mr. Sands' functal,

But the level of violence was nowhere near as high as had been feared.

A police spokesman said it was remarkable that fewer than 10 people had been seriously hurt in the violence, which yesterday saw hundreds of petrol bombs thrown at police and British troops and at least eight shops and businesses gutted by fire.

Mr. Sands' body lay in an open coffin at his Belfast home, which was visited by thousands of mourners prior to tomorrow's military-style funeral at which Republican guerrillas are expected to fire volleys of shots into

He died early vesterday morning in the Maze Prison hospital after a 66-day fast to press demands for himself and other jailed gunmen of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) to be classified as political prisoners. People waited in drizzling rain for hours before entering the Sands home in groups of two or three, to pay their respects to the body in an open hardwood coffin. While behind hars, Mr. Sands was elected a member of the British Parliament and already ranks as a martyr in the IRA campaign to end British rule in Northern Ireland. The sight of Mr. Sands' emaciated body, reduced from 70 to 38 kilogrammes, caused mourners to weep.

"He looks like an infant, very small and very frail. It's really hearthreaking, especially for his mother and sister. I don't think I could go in again," said one mourner.

RSS to design system for safety in factories

AMMAN, May 6 J.T.) — The Royal Scientific Society (RSS) will draw up a comprehensive plan of specifications and requirements, and the basic design, for an early warning telecommunications system for industrial accidents, according to an agreement signed here today by the RSS and the Higher Committee For Public Safety.

The project is intended to link factories and industrial firms with the Civil Defence Directorate in a system to warn of fires and other hazards, RSS Deputy Director Fakhri Dagbestani told the Jordan Times. He said that each factory will be required to install the system if it wants to get speedy ser-vice from Civil Defence.

The agreement was signed for the RSS by its director, Dr. Albert Butros, and for the Civil Defence by its director, Maj. Gen. Khaled Al Tarawneh, in the presence of Amman Chamber of Industry Director Ali Dajani and a representative of the Industrial Development Bank.

Later, at a meeting held at the Chamber of Industry, the Higher Committee for Public Safety took important decisions on technical and financial matters related to the project. A tender for the project will be floated soon to select a firm to implement it, a committee source said after the meeting.

Before issuing the tender, the committee will hold a meeting with the proprietors of factories and industrial institutions to discuss matters connected with the

The guests included Alia personalities including Mr. Fahed Fanek, the airline's finance vice president:Ms. Claudette Safi, secretary to the public relations vice president: Ms. Victoria Bawwab, Jordan's Red Cross secretary; Mr. David Zweifel, deputy chief of mission at the American embassy, and Mr. Carmelo Foti, who is Jordan's representative of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company and who has only been in Jordan since the beginning of Jan-

"All of the net proceeds go to Jordanian charitles, which will be selected by the American Women's Club," Mrs. Carty told a visitor at the shop's open house Monday morning.

Mrs. Carty is no stranger to the operation of thrift shops. Before she came to Jordan two years ago, she had been instrumental in setting up such a shop in the Seattle, Washington area, the proceeds of which were donated to a rehabilitetion home for wayward boys. The Helping Hand, therefore, was a natural way for her to continue in her service to her community.

"And if it weren't for the great support and efforts of Mrs. Patricia Veliotes fthe wife of the former American ambassador to Jordan), the whole project might never have got off the ground," Mrs. Certy said.

"One of the problams we face in a project such as this is the transient nature of the American community, as people ere leaving all the time. But as there are many American women married to Jordanians living here, we

More absurdities

THE DIRECT entry of the United States and the Soviet Union into the Lebanese peace-making process is a mixed blessing, demonstrating yet again the world's meekness in the face of Israeli intemperance and exaggerated selfimportance. The disconcerting aspect of Soviet-American involvement in the Syrian-Israeli confrontation taking place on Lebanese soil is that it raises the stakes and changes the nature of the essential point in dispute. What started out as an Israeli-Palestinian confrontation in southern Lebanon is being expanded into an issue that now revolves around Israel's presumed right to determine the kinds and quantities of Syrian defensive armaments in northeastern Lebanon. The entire Lehanese landscape, in other words, has been transformed into a function of Israel's self-defined security requirements, based on effective control of the land of its Arah neighbours. For the Americans and Soviets now to step into the picture with their envoys will only come at this absurdity and institutionalise the Israeli penchant for deeper and deeper military involvement in the affairs of the region. Will Israel, and its subservient American paymasters, soon ask for Israeli control of the Lebanese mountaintops as the only means of assuring the "security" of a vague concept of political Zionism whose only clear element during the past 100 years has been its appetite for more Arab land and the destruction of more Arab communities? Will the absurdities never cease?

ARAB PRESS COMMENTARY

AL RA'1: We hope that European and world public opinion will learn a real lesson from the ferocious campaign which Mr. Menachem Begin has unleashed against West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. in which he accused them of avarice and gave them insulting and inappropriate descriptions.

At first glance, it might appear as if Mr. Begin wanted to take a hard line to exploit it in the elections. This is what some West German newspapers said. Others said that the Israeli prime minister might have been in a state of hysteria.

Although these two motives-the elections and a state of hysteria--cannot be ignored, they are not the only two explanations for the background of Mr. Begin's compaign against Evidently there are other reasons behind this campaign, and perhaps these reasons are the prime movers of the onslaught.

-- a feverish Israeli attempt to abort the European initiative before it is officially submitted. The choice of Bonn and Paris as a direct goal is because of their independent line in their relationships with the Arabs, and their effective influence within the European group.

-- the dommeering tactics which Israel has habitually employed in its international relations by brandishing the weapon of anti-Semitism. For the first time, the Bonn government declared its rejection of such tactics when it described the Begin campaign as methodical moral extortion, and that Israel should not interfere in the relationships between Bonn and the Arab states.

-- brandisbing a political club in the face of European and American political circles which take the national interests of their countries as their first consideration, and intimidating them by unleasing hysterical campaigns such as the campaign against Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Giscard d Estaing.

AL DUSTOUR: The serious implications of the Lebanese crisis and its impact, on the regional and international levels, clearly indicate the role of the Damascus rulers in dragging Lebanon and the whole area into the storm of the international struggle and reducing the Arab and Lebanese role, thereby giving Israel the justification and the opportunity to become the most effective side in the Lebanese arena.

The ruling clique in Damascus diverted the Arab Deterrent Force from its main task--namely to support the legitimate Lebanese authorities and to achieve reconciliation among the Lebanese, as well as to restore peace and stability to Lebanon--to become a party in the Lebanese dispute, carrying out acts of terrorism, murder and political extortion against the Lebanese people. Meanwhile, the Damascus rulers have closed their eyes to the Israeli infiltration into southern Lebanon and the recurrent onslaughts unleashed by the Zionist enemy against Lebanese cities, villages and Palestinian refugee camps, killing innocent, unarmed people and trying to liquidate the Palestinian resistance and the nationalist forces in Lebanon.

Furthermore, the Damascus rulers fabricated incidents in the Zable area to facilitate Israel's domination, from southern Lebanon to the Bekaa Valley; making this vital area subject to the storms of internationalisation and creating justifications for foreign intervention. The fumbling of the Syrian regime will lead to an expansion of the scope of internationalisation, to include all called for mutual recognition by Israelis and Palestinians and for giving up bostile acts. A questioner suggested that a new Labour government in Israel might accept that formula. That would be a positive thing," Mr. Milbem replied, "A great step forward. It would open the door to peace. It wouldn't happen overnight, but it would be an indication that something may come about."

He denied that the basic covenant of the PLO calls for the destruction of Israel.

"It's not there," he said. Mr. Milhem said that if be were prime minister of Israel he would. offer to recognise the right of Palestinian Arabs to their own state, but not withdraw his forces.

Then the ball would be on the Arab side of the playground," be said. "You would see - the Palestinians would-respond."

But he added to another questioner that he did not want to make recognition of a Palestinian state a precondition for talks.

"I don't like to talk aboot preconditions," he said. "If everyone has preconditions you end up getFaction yesterday, Mr. Schmidt apparently declined to answer Begin's attacks.

An SPD spokesman said the chancellor had nothing to add to remarks by a government spo-kesman who Monday labelled Begin's remarks "besides the point and insulting."

Meanwhile in Tel Aviv Police today arrested 10 orthodox Jewish Israeli youths who went on a window-smashing rampage against a house owned by a German Christiao Fundamentalist group.

A police spokesman said the Jewish seminary students smashed windows and caused thousands of dollars of damage late last oight to a building in Zichron Yaakov that is the communal residence of about 100 German Christians

The police would draw no connection between the incidents but, it was the first time the group's building had been vandalised since the commune was founded

The spokesman said police took the attack most seriously, and set up tight roadblocks around the town about 25 kilometres south of Haifa to catch the attackers. He said police believe there were more than 10 youths involved, and the roadblocks remained in position today.

Yesterday a top diplomat in Israel's foreign ministry called in, West Germany's charge d'affaires in Tel Aviv to deliver a protest over Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's remarks favouring Palestinian rights.

"I explained to him that many of the things Schmidt said not only insulted us and were most negative, but also were inaccurate and based on a lack of understanding of the area." Mr. David Kimche, foreign ministry director-geogral, told Israel Television.

West German Charge d'Affaires Dr. Franz Sekura declined commenting on the meeting.

Mr. Kimcbe said he assumed his talk with Mr. Sekura was similar to a meeting Israel's ambassador in Bonn would have with German foreign ministry officials. "I'm sure relations will be tense for a time." Mr. Kimche said, "but we hope the relations between both countries will continue as they were before Chancellor Schmidt's ning Israel's general election next The survey came in the middle of a crisis in which Mr. Begin's forceful opposition to the deployment of Syrian ground-to-air missiles in Lebanon has drawn widespread Israeli public support. According to poll figures published by the English-language Jerusalem Post, Mr. Begin's Likud bloc coalnion is now running neck-and-neck with the opposition Labour Party, which at the start of the year was expecting a landslide victory.

The poll showed that Likud and Labour could cach expect to win 41 seats in the 120-member Knesset. Likud's present coalition allies, the National Religious Party (NRP), could expect nine seats in this estimate.

Taking into account other right-wing splinter groups, Mr. Begin could well put together another coalition if these figures proved correct.

The findings were a severe disappointment to the Labour Party, which notil recently had hoped for a victory big enough to put the party in power free of any coalition shackles. At the beginning of the year, when the Begin government was buffeted by ecocomic problems and torn by internal squabbles, Labour believed it could win easily on domestic issues. The annual inflation rate of 134 per cent was already at the top of the World League and getting worse. Social problems were rife and the government was beset with scandals involving corruption. Then Mr. Begin brought in a new finance minister, Mr. Yoram Aridor, who threw out all previous policies calling for strict control of public spending. Mr. Aridor embarked on a tax-cutting programme coupled with reimposition of subsidies on basic food products.

The result was a fall in food prices and a rush to buy consumer products like colour television Labour warned that the money being handed out by the treasury now would need to be recouped with interest after the election.

MIDDLE EAST BRIEFS

Arafat discusses Lebanon in Kuwait

KUWAIT, May 6 (R) - Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) leader Yasser Arafat dis-cussed the crisis in Lebanon today with the Amir of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber Al Ahmad Al Sabah, the official Kuwait news agency said, Mr. Arafat arrived last night from Saudi Arabia on a Gulf tour which Palestinian sources said was aimed at urging support for the PLO and Syria in the crisis. In Saudi Arabia Mr. Arafat had talks with Crown Prince Fahd and met Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky. Fighting last month in Lebanon has led to rising tension between Israel and Syria, Israel has insisted that Syria withdraw anti-aircraft missiles it stationed in Lebanon after Israeli planes shot down two Surian belicopters. Kuwaiti Minister of State for Cabinet Affairs Abdulaziz Hussein left for Damascus with a message from Sheikh Jaber Al Ahmad to Syrian President Hafez Al Assad, the Kuwait news agency said.

Egypt calls for Israeli-Syrian restraint

CAIRO, May 6 (A.P.) - Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali yesterday appealed to Israel and Syria to practice self-restraint over the ground-to air missile crisis in Lebanon. "Egypt hopes that neither Syria nor Israel would escalate the situation further." Mr. Ali said in a statement to the Middle East news agency, "We hope that the Lebanese crisis be solved as soon as possible and that shedding blood will be stopped immediately, Mr. Ali added. He said Egypt has condemned the Syrian 'escalation" and the Israeli "intervention" in

U.N. conference deplores Israeli hindrance of assistance to Palestinians

MANILA, May 6 (R) - Arab nations persuaded a United Nations conference on human settlements here today to pass a resolution deploring Israel's failure to implement previous decisions on assistance to Palestinians. The vote was 17 in favour and one, the United States, against with 15 abstentions and 25 delegations absent. The European community abstained. In what Israeli ambassador to the Philippines Moshe Raviv called a very significant development, the Latin American countries at the conference, with the exception of Cuba and Jamaica, also abstained,

The resolution called for continued efforts to deliver assistance to the Palestinians, and urged the general assembly to deplore what it called the obstacles set up to hinder assistance to the Palestinians by Israel. Before the vote, Mr. Raviv told delegates that the proposal "represents a clear attempt to politicise this conference. The best way to assist the Palestinian inhabitants in these areas is to convince them to join in the autonomy negoriations and not by passing resolutions."

Kuwaiti daily suggests Arab RDF

KUWAIT, May 6 (R) - A Kuwaiti newspaper suggested today that Gulf states set up their own Rapid Deployment Force (RDF) to foil U.S. plans to protect them. Al Qabas said the American RDF would be an "occupation force" and proposed that the six conservative states in the new Gulf Co-operation Council should form a joint force to counter any threats against the area. It said this would boost the principle that Gulf states must be responsible for their own defence and block attempts by the United States to spread its influence over the region." Gelf officials say privately that Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the four other oil states in the Co-operation Council differ too much on defence policy to make overt joint action possible at present. But co-ordination of defence policies is one of the long-term aims of the

King Hassan envoy in Iraq

BEIRUT, May 6 (R) - A personal envoy of King Hassan of Morocco arrived in Bughdao today with a message to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and reiterated Morocco's support for Iraq in its conflict with Iran, the Iraqi News Agency reported. It said the message, delivered by Information Minister Abdelwahed Belkaziz, concerned bilateral relations and Middle East developments. It was announced in Rabat yesterday that King Hassan had sent about 10 envoys on a tour of some 90 countries to explain what was described as the serious situation arising from Libvan threats to Morocco. The diplomatic campaign followed calls by Libyan leader Muammar Qadhafi for an alliance between Libya. Oil/ministers call for price freeze

KUWAIT. May 6 (RT—A growing number of OPEC ministers today backed the idea that the oil exporters' group, should freeze prices when it meets in Geneva on

Here for talks among Arah oil ministers, Dr./ Mana Said Al Oteiba of the United Arab Emirates told Reuters prices should be frozen during a present glut on the world market but not cut.

Oatari Minister Abdul Aziz Bin Khalifa Al Thani predicted that the May 25 meeting would agree to such a price freeze.

GENEVA, May 6 (R) - Talks on a new international textiles agreement will resume here tomorrow with the European Economic Community (EEC) outlining its case for holding down imports from the third world, diplomats said

Strong differences of view are certain to be aired because developing countries have vowed to stand firm for freer trade during the two-day meeting at the headquarters of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

No conclusions are expected but diplomatic sources said the talks in GATT's 50-nation textiles committee would set the tone for hard burgaining sessions later this year,

The EEC and a group of developing countries which are net exporters are sharply divided over what should replace the present multifibre arrangement (MFA) which runs out next December 31 after a four-year extension.

The EEC commission wants to scrap a clause guaranteeing export growth rates for developing countries, arguing that growth in EEC consumption of textiles should be the criterion.

But leading Third World exporters will remind the panel that their share of EEC markets declined between 1977-79 while that of the United States soared, diplomatic sources said.

Colombian Ambassador Felipe Jaramillo said he would speak for the developing countries and stress they will stand united in the face of EEC attempts to separate more advanced nations like Hong Kong. South Korea. India and Brazil from the rest.

The EEC Council of Ministers is due to finalise the community's MFA position on June 22.

Both exporters and importers can draw ammunition from a new report by the committee's working group which examines how far MFA countries have tried to adjust to changing con-

Bonn to increase aid to Bangladesh

BONN, May 6 (R) — West Germany has pledged increased development aid to Bangladesh during the visit to Bonn of Bangladesh President Ziaur Rahman

The Development Ministry said Bonn would add 18 million marks ($8 million) to the 267 million marks ($118 million) it gave Dacca last year in aid for family planning, agriculture and energy

President Zia, on a five-day official visit, told a news conference yesterday that he and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt agreed on the importance of the North-South summit meeting planned for Mexico next autumn. He praised West Germany's role in helping Bangladesh explore its energy resources, which he said included oil, gas and coal. Bonn had expressed interest in helping coal and limestone mining projects, the president said. He said his government wanted to involve private West German firms in Bangladesh and had recently legislated to protect foreign investment.

Mobil accused of breaking sanctions

WASHINGTON, May 6 (R) - A private legal group has accused Mobil Oil Corporation of shipping oil to Rhodesia from 1967 to 1979 in violation of U.S. law and United Nations trade sanctions.

The Washington-hased International Human Rights Law Group said vesterday it had obtained customs documents from Mozambique showing Mobil shipped oil to Mozambique marked to go to Rhodesia. Mobil denied the charges.

Previous U.S. treasury department and congressional investigations dismissed the allegations, but the law group said the documents had not been available until now.

The U.N. imposed sanctions between 1967 and 1979 against formerly white-ruled Rhodesia, which became the independent state of Zimhabwe a year ago.

A case of inconspicuous consumption in Canada

By Stuart Marshell

Compared to British and European motorists, Americans are well pampered. But even they are not so well off -- compared to the Canadians.

LONDON: Earlier this month, my Peugeot 305GLD estate had its engine oil and filter changed. The hill was £16.96 - £6 for 5 litres of oil, £3.15 for the filter, 10p for a gisket, £5.50 for labour and £2.21 VAT. I had booked the service that morning and it took the garage 25 minutes.

Last week, in a B.P. garage on the outskirts of Toronto, I saw an identical service performed on a big American V8. The operation took 10 minutes; the motorist had literally driven in off the street; and it cost him C$9,98 (£3.90) including 5 litres of B.P. Super Visco 10W-40 lubricant and the filter.

While I was still getting over the shock, the motorist went round to the pump island, filled his tank with unleaded premium fuel at 31 cents a litte (54p an Imperial gallon) and bought a car wash ticket for 48p. He nosed his car into the wash tunnel.

A conveyor pulled it through slowly while it was drenched in detergent, brushed from every direction, waxed and blown dry. emerging really clean and shining in three minutes. (The wax is perfumed to the buyer's choice pine, I was told, was the most popular.)

All of this led me to draw two conclusions. First, that I really must carry out my own 3,000 mile services in future. And secondly, that the Canadian motorist must be the most pampered in the Westem world.

Even by North American standards the Canadian car owner is getting an exceptionally good deal from companies like B.P. that are fighting for his custom. If the man I had watched had wanted a full 33 point service and inspection, with lubricant and filter changes, chassis greasing and a thorough check everything from the tyres to fluid levels, it would have cost the equivalent of £8.54, inclusive of products and labour. All done while he waited, of course.

charging motorists extra if they and suffering traffic jams by day ouv by credit card. "You've got to be kidding" was the reaction of one B.P. manager when I told him that a service charge equal to 50 cents was now common (and some night say sharp) practice at U.K.

At 54p an imperial gallon, Canadian petrol is so cheap that U.S. drivers are pouring over the border to hrim their tanks and save about U.S.$9 per gasguzzler's tank full.

The influx has reached such proportions that the local tabloid daily headlined a story: "Gas hungry Yanks fuel town's ire." The citizens of Fort Erie were, it was said, being kept awake at night and the city council was preparing a by-law forcing gas stations to close between 1 a.m. and 7 a.m.

The car totally dominates the transport scene in Canada. Motorists each drive about 12,700 miles a year, mainly in medium or large-sized American designed though locally manufactured cars. Foreign -- and principally Japanese -- cars now hold 27 per cent of the market.

Although, for some years, petrol has been sold by litres, and highway distances measured in kilometres, Canadian motorists still tend to think imperial.

They are allowed to drive a little faster than the Americans -- 100 km/h compared with the U.S. limitof 88 km/h. Canadian exhaust emission rules are easier, too, though they are tougher than in Eur-

Just how heavy a burden the U.S. emission control standards put on a driver's pocket was revealed by a recent series of tests, carried out on Renault 5s with controls to U.S. Canadian and European standards.

The consumption figures were 25 mpg (U.S.), 33 mpg (Canada) and 43 mpg (Europeant which goes to show that what you gain on the environmentalist's roundabout, you lose on the fuel conservation swings.

Q. - Every now and then you use terms in your column that are unfamiliar to me. Two in particular crop up quite often-dummy reversal and donble dummy. Both sound like double talk to me. Can you explain?-R. Kennedy, Houston, Texas

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.) ly used to refer to the play of a hand which is so perfect that it seems that the player was looking at all four hands. It comes from whist, where a form of the game called Double Dummy was played by two people, each of whom was partnered by a dummy haod that was open on the table. It evolved into solving problems, either of full or partial hands, where all four hands were shown.

Dummy reversal is a common, though not easily recognized, technique in the play of the cards. Instead of using dummy's trumps to ruff losers, declarer ruffs dummy's losers in his hand and utilizes dummy's trumps to draw the enemy trumps. thereby gaining one or more tricks. A clue to when you should try to make the dummy the master band is possession of high trumps in dummy. Consider this hand:

+ A975 ♥ Q 109. ♦ 1083

V 62 V 853 OAK97 ♦ Q52 +J943 + 108

♥AKJ74 ♦ J64 + AK 52 South is declarer at four hearts and West leads the king of spades. Declarer has three diamond losers and has to worry about the fourth club. If he draws trumps and clubs do not break 3.3, declarer will have to lose a club trick and go down one. One line of play is to draw only two rounds of trumps, then play three rounds of clubs. If clubs are 3-3, or if the hand with four clubs also has three hearts, the cootract will be made. As the cards lie, that line of play fails. The high trumps in dummy are the tip-off that a dummy reversal may succeed-that needs only a 3-2 trump division. Win the ace of spades and ruff a spade. Enter dummy with the nine of trumps and ruff a spade high. Cross back to dummy with a trump and ruff the last spade with declarer's last trump.

Now get back to dummy with the queen of clubs and draw that last trump with the queen, discarding a diamond from the closed band. If clubs are 3-3, declarer will make an overtrick. As it is, he comes to ten tricks: three spade ruffs in band, three trump tricks in dummy, the ace of spades and three club

Giscard: 'I've led France through 7 years Mitternand: 'What can you do tomorrow?'

Who came out winner in French TV debate?

PARIS, May 6 (A.P.) — In a crucial televised debate aimed at 36 million voters, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and his Socialist challenger Francois Mitterrand concentrated on the two themes that have dominated the campaign -- unemployment and a communist role in government.

The face-to-face encounter. which may determine the outcome of Sunday's election, ran 25 minutes over the scheduled one hour 50 minutes and also involved foreign policy, the economy, nuclear energy and defence.

Mr. Giscard d'Estaing, engaged in a fight for re-election to a second seven-year term, turned the first 35 minutes of the dehate into a discussion of how Mr. Mitterrand would govern with the Communist support necessary if he is to be elected. He questioned Mr. Mitterrand's plans for quick legislative elections to win a governing majority.

Mr. Mitterrand counterattacked over the economic record of the last seven years, which has left 1.6 million out of work. The incumbent contrasted his experience, often with "tough moments," with Mr. Mitterrand's position as "minister of words." Mr. Mitterrand pointed out that his role had been that of opposition leader and that he had built the Socialists into the largest single party in the nation over the past decade

At Mr. Mitterrand's insistence, the debate was supposed to be American style with journalists asking questions. Mr. Jean Boissanat of L'Expansion an eco-nomic magazine, and Mr. Michele Cotta, a political reporter for Radio Television Lumbrg, did guide the discussion and kept track of the time. But the two candidates often talked past them and spent much of the time in a French style classic face-to-face encounter that Mr. Giscard d'Estaing had always wanted. Both men were seated at desks with papers to refer to in from of them. Mr. Giscard d'Estaing, a modern era politician who has mastered the use of television, appeared comfortable except at the start while Mr. Mitterrand, who began his political career less incisive and sometimes chuckled nervously.

Only in his closing five minute statement did Mr. Mitterrand come alive, evoking subjects he had wished to raise. He mentioned the Third World, and the problems of Central America and moral role France should play.

In his closing statement, the president said seven years as France's leader had changed him.

"I have fought for France and the French and I think this, rather than estranging me from them, has

LONDON. May 6 (A.P.) - Peter Sutcliffe, the self-confessed

"Yorkshire Ripper" who has admitted killing 13 women, slipped past police hunting him on nine separate occasions. Attorney-

General sir Michael Havers has told London's Old Bailey criminal court. Sir Michael told a jury of six men and six women that police questioned the soft-spoken, 34-year-old truck driver from Yorkshire in northern England nine times during the five year string of attacks, the worst reign of terror against women in British criminal history. Eight of the victims were prostitutes and each time Sutcliffe was questioned it was after his car was spotted in a red light district in northern England. But on each occasioo, until his arrest last January, he always managed to give explanations about his movements that satisfied police. Sir Michael said, Sut-hearing. Mr. Fedorenko was denaturalised last month after wit-

Mr. Giscard d'Estaing also said exchanges of messages with Mr. Brezhnev had shown the Soviet leadership had had "great hesitations" before going into-Afghanistan.

Mr. Mitterrand accused the president of being hostile to the Camp David agreements on the Middle East, and of being photographed in Jordao looking at Israel through binoculars.

Mr. Giscard d'Estaing replied that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat agreed with his analysis of the agreement -- and that the photograph had been taken at a Paris racetrack, because he had banned all photos during his visit to the Jordan Valley.

Yorkshire Ripper under trial

A stab in the eye for an 'accusing stare'

LONDON, May 6 (Agencies) - Peter Sutcliffe, who has admitted 13 slavings of women blamed on the "Yorkshire Ripper," killed his last victim as she looked at him" with an accusing eye." the Old Bailey central criminal court was told today.

Attorney-general Sir Michael Havers told the jury of six men and six women that Sutcliffe, 34, stahbed Leeds University student Jacqueline Hill in the eye, bashed in her skull, slashed her across the head with a knife and stabbed her in the breast.

Miss Hill, 20, was slain as she returned to her university residence Nov. 17. Sutcliffe was arrested Jan. 2, ending a five-year manhunt for the man who was named after the notorious "Jack the Ripper" killer of prostitutes. Police say eight of Sutcliffe's victims were prostitutes.

The soft-shoken, bearded truck driver pleaded guilty to 13 counts of manslaughter, and seven charges of attempted murder of women who survived his attacks, when his trial opened last week. But he is claiming innocence of murder charges on grounds df insacity.

Sutcliffe was expressionless as Sir Michael described the attack on Miss Hill.

Sir Michael said Miss Hill's uoderclothes had been pulled off and her body multilated by a hammer and chisel or screwdriver. Sutcliffe was quoted as telling police in a statement: "I pulled Miss Hill's clothes off. Her eye was wide open and she seemed to he looking at me with an accusing stare. This shook me up a bit so I jahbed ascrewdriver into her eye."

The attorney general said yesterday when the trial resumed that the jury had to decide whether Sutcliffe was mentally sick, as doctors say he is, or whether he was trying to dupe them.

According to a statement Sutcliffe made to police he killed his first victim, prostitute Wilma McCann, because she taunted him sexually, Sir Michael said.

Start of a purge in Yugoslavia

BELGRADE. May 6 (R) — The resignation of the Communist Party chief in the southern Yugoslav province of Kosovo appears to be the start of a party purge following Albanian nationalist riots there last month, informed sources said today.

Mr. Mahmut Bakali, 45, resigned at a provincial party committee meeting yesterday. Many speakers called for a purge following a report criticising the party for inefficiency and inertia in not heading off the riots, in which at least nine people died.

Mr. Bakali said he accepted the greatest share of responsibility for the riots, which have shaken the Yugoslav federatioo of several historically antagonistic nationalities.

The sources said the calls for a purge were likely to be heeded as the federal government was clearly worried by a resurgence of extremist nationalism.

Nationalism has always been a cause for anxiety in Yugoslavia, even during the long rule of President Tho. the symbol of national unity until his death a year ago.

Communist Yugoslavia was born out of a civil war fought within the war against Hitler.

months as bonded labourers, it was reported here. More than 20 families at the villages of Lakharpur in Haryana State were put on trucks by social workers and taken to a nearby hamlet where they were to be housed in a school until they could secure new jobs. news reports said. The quarry owner, identified as S.H. Sharma, was not present when the workers were taken away. The lahourers were recruited about seven months ago from the western and central states of Maharashtra and Madhya Pradesh when workers at a private stone crushing firm in Lakharpur struck for higher wages, the reports said. Although promised nine rupees ($1.08) a day for men and seven rupees (84 cents) for women, the fabourers were given less than half those amounts and were paid only sporadically, they told a truckload of reporters accompanying the opposition politician who organised the release. According to the news reports, the quarry owner had paid the train fares of the labourers from their homes to Lakharpur. The fares were to be deducted from their wages, and the labourers were to be allowed to return home after six months.
